Girl Talk Founder Honored by WXIA-TV

Generous donation by local entrepreneur surprises all in attendance.

ATLANTA – April 17, 2007 – Girl Talk, Inc. founder, Haley Kilpatrick, was honored alongside nine other Atlanta leaders on Tuesday night at the Marriott Marquis Hotel with WXIA-TV’s “11Alive Community Service Award.” The annual ceremony marked 32-years for the award and was said to be the largest crowd in the event’s history.

Kilpatrick was presented to the crowd by local weatherman, Paul Ossman and greeted with tears and applause for her near five-year dedication to Girl Talk. Following a previously taped montage and an acceptance speech, Kilpatrick was further surprised, as was the entire room, by this year’s “Boisfeuillet Jones Award” recipient R. Charles Loudermilk, Sr.

Loudermilk, Sr., community leader and founder, chairman and CEO of Aaron Rents Inc., surprised the crowd and all ten honorees with a more than generous $10,000 donation to each recipient’s charitable organization.

“I was incredibly honored to be amongst the nine other wonderful organizations selected by WXIA-TV as a Community Service Award recipient,” said Kilpatrick. “And then, to be given such a generous gift on top of that by Mr. Loudermilk is just amazing! Girl Talk is so appreciative of his generosity and my plan is to put this contribution towards our Web site development so that we can reach more girls every day!”

Girl Talk is a nonprofit organization that desires to inspire young teenagers to build self-esteem through positive weekly programs as well as encourage each girl to have a unique sense of individuality. Organized and led by inspirational high school girls who serve as mentors, the girls participate in various activities and conversations that promote self-worth. The bonds and lessons that are learned in Girl Talk meetings are something the girls will carry with them wherever they go in life and because of this, each girl will grow into a confident and independent young woman. For more information visit www.desiretoinspire.org.
